PURPOSE

The purpose of this guide is to center, honor, celebrate, and uplift the contributions and voices of the LGBTQIA+ community in our society. This guide will provide resources to United Way staff during Pride Month and beyond.

OUTCOMES

This guide will help participants to:

- Build awareness and empathy
- Increase cultural competency
- Cultivate a sense of belonging and community
- Identify and reflect upon ones own cultural identity

ABOUT PRIDE

LGBTQIA+ stands for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer/Questioning, Intersex, Asexual, and the + holds space for other diverse gender and sexual identities. LGBTQIA+ Pride Month is currently celebrated each year in the month of June to honor the 1969 Stonewall Uprising in Manhattan, New York. The Stonewall Uprising was a tipping point for the gay liberation movement in the United States. Today, celebrations include pride parades, picnics, parties, workshops, and concerts. LGBTQIA+ Pride Month events attract millions of participants around the world. According to the organization GLADD, the annual recognition provides “an opportunity for the community to come together, take stock and recognize the advances and setbacks made in the past year. It is also a chance for the community to come together and celebrate in a festive, affirming atmosphere”. It's important to remember that Pride is not just a celebration, but also a time to advocate for equal rights and dignity for all individuals regardless of their sexual orientation or gender identity.

Pride

Key Terms

Asexual

experiencing no sexual feelings or desires; not feeling sexual attraction to anyone.

Cisgender

is an adjective that describes a person whose gender identity aligns with the sex they were assigned at birth.

Deadnaming

to call (a transgender person) by their birth name when they have changed their name as part of their gender transition.

Gender

is often defined as a social construct of norms, behaviors and roles that varies between societies and over time. Gender is often categorized as male, female or nonbinary.

Gender Dysphoria

refers to psychological distress that results from an incongruence between one's sex assigned at birth and one's gender identity. Not all trans people experience dysphoria, and those who do may experience it at varying levels of intensity.

Gender Expansive

is an adjective that can describe someone with a more flexible gender identity than might be associated with a typical gender binary.

Gender Expression

is how a person presents gender outwardly, through behavior, clothing, voice or other perceived characteristics.

Gender Identity

is one's own internal sense of self and their gender, whether that is man, woman, neither or both. Unlike gender expression, gender identity is not outwardly visible to others.

Intersex

is an umbrella term used to describe people with differences in reproductive anatomy, chromosomes or hormones that don't fit typical definitions of male and female.

Nonbinary

is a term that can be used by people who do not describe themselves or their genders as fitting into the categories of man or woman.

Sex

refers to a person's biological status and is typically assigned at birth, usually on the basis of external anatomy. Sex is typically categorized as male, female or intersex.

Sexual Orientation

refers to the enduring physical, romantic and/or emotional attraction to members of the same and/or other genders, including lesbian, gay, bisexual and straight orientations.

Transgender

is an adjective used to describe someone whose gender identity differs from the sex assigned at birth. A transgender man, for example, is someone who was listed as female at birth but whose gender identity is male.

Queer

An umbrella term used to describe gender/sexual/romantic orientations or identities that fall outside of societal norms. Not all people who identify as LGBTQIA use "queer" to describe themselves.

Questioning

The process of exploring one's own gender identity, gender expression, and/or sexual orientation. Some people may also use this term to name their identity within the LGBTQIA community.

MAKING GAY HISTORY

Making Gay History addresses the absence of substantive, in-depth LGBTQ+-inclusive American history from the public discourse and the classroom. By sharing the stories of those who helped a despised minority take its rightful place in society as full and equal citizens, we aim to encourage connection, pride, and solidarity within the LGBTQ+ community—and to provide an entry point for both allies and the general public to its largely hidden history.

LGBTQ&A was created in 2016 in order to document modern LGBTQ+ history — to get beyond transition and coming out stories, to get to know each person, their accomplishments, their failures, and how to they got to where they are today.

LGBTQ&A

THE MOST INTERESTING PEOPLE IN THE WORLD ARE QUEER.

Bad with Money is hosted by best-selling author and comedian Gaby Dunn. They discuss the intersection of finance and social justice and bring “a social justice, feminist, and unabashedly radical point of view to conversations with top journalists, student loan experts, tax specialists, mutual aid organizers and other money disrupters in their fields.”

Check out Queery, hosted by standup comic Cameron Esposito, for must-listen conversations with “some of the brightest luminaries in the LGBTQ+ family.” Esposito and guests discuss gender identity, politics, sexuality, civil rights, and more.

QUEERY WITH CAMERON ESPOSITO

GENDER REVEAL

The Gender Reveal podcast features journalist and “resident gender detective” Tuck Woodstock interviewing trans and nonbinary artists and activists. They answer listener questions, analyze current events, and create a show that acts as an educational tool for anyone hoping to learn more about gender.

Marsha “Pay it No Mind” Johnson (1945-1992) was a Black trans woman who was a force behind the Stonewall Riots and surrounding activism that sparked a new phase of the LGBTQ+ movement in 1969.

Sylvia Rivera (1951-2002) is one of the most notable Stonewall veterans and fierce trans activists of the late twentieth century. Sylvia Rivera refused to accept conformity to the status quo, constantly calling out the mainstream “gay rights” movement for being complacent in perpetuating systems that continued to specifically disenfranchise people of color.

Bayard Rustin (1912-1987) was a Civil Rights organizer and activist, best known for his work as adviser to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and the primary organizer of the March on Washington in 1963. Throughout his life, Rustin was engaged in several pacifist groups and early civil rights protests, with a particular passion for non-violent resistance.

Laverne Cox is a Black transgender actress, dancer, and activist. Her breakout role was as Sophia Burset in the acclaimed Netflix series, Orange is the New Black, landing her an Emmy nomination for “Outstanding Guest Actress in a Comedy Series”—the very first transgender person to do so in history.

Audre Lorde (1934-1992) was a feminist, lesbian, poet, and civil rights activist. Initially a librarian for New York Public Schools in the 1960s, Lorde eventually carved her way into the academic world as a radical Black, queer woman, publishing her canonical essay, “The Master’s Tools Will Not Dismantle the Master’s House.”

Hinaleimoana Wong-Kalu, also known as Kumu Hina, is a Kanaka Maoli (Native Hawaiian) teacher, cultural practitioner, and community leader. She was the founding member of Kulia Na Mamo, a community organization established to improve the quality of life for māhū wahine (a Hawaiian identity similar to trans woman), and served for thirteen years as the Director of Culture at a Honolulu public charter school dedicated to using native Hawaiian culture, history, and education as tools for developing and empowering the next generation of warrior scholars.

Gloria Anzaldúa (1942-2004) was a queer Chicana poet, writer, and feminist theorist most known for her book, Borderlands/La Frontera: The New Mestiza, a groundbreaking piece of work for the canons of cultural, feminist, and queer studies. Much of her work focuses on her experience growing up on the border of Mexico and Texas.

Frida Kahlo (1907-1954) was a Mexican painter and polio survivor known for her creative self-portraits, namely The Two Fridas (1939) and Self Portrait with Cropped Hair (1940). Beyond her art, Frida became a world-renowned figure for being openly bisexual and often dressing in traditionally masculine clothing. She is known for painting with vibrant colors with influences from indigenous Mexican cultures, as well as Realism, Symbolism, and Surrealism. Her self-portraits are understood today as symbols of her relationship with herself, and her gender and sexuality.

Angela Davis is a Black political activist, academic, and author who also identifies as a lesbian. Her work continues to focus on the intersections of race, gender, and economic justice. She first emerged as a leader within the Black Panther Party in the 1960s, and continues to work today as an intellectual on the frontlines, and at the intersections of racial, gender, and class justice movements.
